

Review: Intraceuticals Infusion Treatment at Spa Aquazul (San Diego Hilton Bayfront)

Contrary to what you might think, out here in San Diego the sunny weather, palm trees, and ocean water are not enough to make us feel relaxed and physically beautiful. We do need to pamper ourselves once in awhile with a visit to the spa. I do have to say that a spa located in a nice hotel overlooking the ocean is definitely a nice treat.

Can you say livin' the good life?

When you visit Spa Aquazul at the Hilton Bayfront, that's exactly what you'll start to believe. Of course, I've known this for many years now, but you certainly need a reminder once in awhile.

I was invited to experience the Intraceuticals Infusions treatment and to meet renowned makeup artist, Gina Brooke, who is one of the brand ambassadors. Gina uses the treatment on many A-list celebrities who absolutely love it. Now, I'm not one to go wild just because someone like Madonna endorses a beauty regimen, but after experiencing the facial myself, I can understand why she's addicted to it.

The Intraceuticals treatment is an oxygen facial that leaves your skin feeling as smooth and soft as a baby's bottom. First, your face is sprayed with a serum of nutrients, and then a wand is applied across the face that detoxes and infuses your skin with oxygen. Even just a few minutes into the facial I could already feel my skin tightening up. It's a very simple process and my face looked so radiant afterwards.

Oxygen infusion facial cost = $175

The feeling that you're the most beautiful woman on the planet = PRICELESS

Intraceuticals also has several lines of take-home products that will help with maintaining healthy skin long after the treatment. I've been trying out their opulence brightening wand for the sun spots on my cheeks and the line wand for the small lines on my forehead. I'll report back in a couple months to let you know how they work out for me. You can find out more about their products by visiting <http://www.intraceuticals.com/>.

After my treatment I took a short staycation and hung out at the hotel to bask and enjoy the luxurious views...

USA, July 2010