

Beauty Counter blog

February 22, 2010 12:38 pm

Backstage Skincare Secrets, Revealed

We've been devoting much of our time and blogosphere space for the last week and a half to giving you an insider's perspective on the hair and makeup looks from New York fashion week and beyond. Today, we'd like to give a shout-out to the skincare secret weapons that makeup artists rely on to keep models looking fresh through a nonstop, month-long show season. (Even the beautiful people are plagued by dehydration and breakouts, it turns out.) Here, a short list of their go-to products:

What: Intraceuticals.

Where: Spotted backstage at Naomi Campbell's Fashion for Relief show.

Why: Facialist Michelle Peck and her daughter Tarin performed Intraceuticals' Rejuvenate Facials on all models backstage. The treatment promotes natural collagen and elastin production and improves skin texture for a visibly smoother appearance.