

TERRY'S SPA AND BEAUTY BLOG

REDUX: mySpa ~ Fairmont Chicago

My treatment experience was the advanced Intraceuticals Rejuvenate and Atoxelene Infusion Oxygen Facial. My experience would mark the launch of the Intraceuticals facial to the mySpa array of targeted therapeutic facial treatments.

One thing about me is that when I'm wrong, I fess up to it. And, I was totally wrong about all of my pre-conceived ideas of the Intraceuticals line and the promises of the treatment and its immediate and noticeable results. I just love still being able to learn a few things or two at my age, but, I digress.....

The first serum, Atoxelene, contains the powerful peptide Argireline, which relaxes and smoothes fine lines and wrinkles, a safer and non-invasive alternative to painful injectables. The second serum, Rejuvenate, contains hyaluronic acid, which aids in smoothing and hydrating. The oxygen is the delivery system that advances the serums into deeper layers of the skin. The serums aided in the hydration, firming, lifting and plumping of cells. Fine lines and wrinkles were diminished, while texture was smoothed, lifted and plumped.

Once my skin was scrupulously cleansed and the therapeutic serums applied, aided by the potent oxygen delivery, the Contour Eye Gel, Hydration Gel, and Moisture Binding Cream products were applied. I also received an application of on-demand Atoxelene via the Atoxelene Wand, which is a portable wonder and can be applied to target fine lines and wrinkles anywhere and any time. All products were gentle, non-irritating, and lightweight; between the oxygen infused serums and these products, my face also felt lighter. I couldn't believe how much healthier my skin appeared and how much more improved it appeared pre-treatment. My skin was lifted and plumper, while its texture more refined; and, the few fine lines and wrinkles I had were softened to the point that they were barely visible. It was amazing. These extraordinary results lasted a good three days, with results appearing to be cumulative and improving with each passing day.

Intraceuticals recommends a series of six consecutive weekly oxygen serum infusions, which will optimize benefits and also create a cumulative benefit; thereafter, they recommended a maintenance regimen of every six to eight weeks.

Also at this special launch was Gina Brooke, Makeup Artist and Intraceuticals Brand Ambassador; I thoroughly enjoyed our conversation about her passion and philosophies on products and trends. I also enjoyed perusing her impressive portfolio, which included numerous cover feature clippings of some of the best known who's-who in star-dom.

For more on mySpa www.myspachicago.com

For more on Intraceuticals www.intraceuticals.com

USA, June 2010